Dear Jill:

Here are some material from Emerald Seed & Supply on Stream Savers.™ This is for the ELD Auto resource book.

I did get a call from them concerning their worries that some users might install them and then never service them. We should still hold to no process wastewater going to storm. However, I have advised some businesses, non-auto, that if they have light oil loadings, we would want them to install such a device. Heavier loadings or steam cleaning of engines or transmissions still require an oil/water separator.

Yours truly
